Helping people through bees

Description

A charity which helps some of the world's poorest communities through beekeeping is looking for someone in the Saffron Walden area to run its online shop.

The charity provides people with training and locally sourced materials to make hives plus protective clothing. Money from the sale of honey is used to buy medicines, pay school fees and buy household essentials.

The volunteer would work from home, initially for just one hour per week. He or she would need to be able access shop orders with a computer or smartphone and have a small space to store stock. Orders would then have to be posted and packed as they arrive. No special skills or qualifications are required.
